

EARTH ALIVE! SUSTAINABILITY AND THE SACRED two workshops with sacred earth network and sequatchie valley institute at moonshadow near dunlap, tn

may 2-4 and may 8-10 (intensive) 2008

A sustainable culture is as close as our bones. The memories of a deeply meaningful life, connected ever so deeply to the land and each other can be remembered and reclaimed. Remembering who we really are is the crucial first step in shaking off the extremely destructive industrial worldview that lives inside our minds.

Together, we can experience a felt re-connection with Nature that expands our ability to create an Earth-honoring culture for future generations of plants, animals and humans. Join us as we step outside of ordinary mind and reality to experience a larger consciousness, a deeper sense of the Sacred within and without and the magic of Being Alive in the present moment. We will express our unique gifts through nature awareness, mindfulness practice, sharing circles and “joyful creation” processes. We will purify ourselves and honor Mother Earth through ceremony, and use shamanic journeying as a way to access inner wisdom and guidance. Participants will come away rejuvenated, with fresh insights and energy to create the world we know in our hearts.
